Only One Stake Event on the No Trace Yet of Little Alexander Gravesend Card To-Day.

The Fifth Race Should Furnish an His Coat Carefully Stowed Half Interesting Contest.

There is but a single stake event on the sard at Gravesend to-day, and that promises Pherson, jr., who disappeared from his home to be the least interesting of any event to be at the Schermerhorn mansion, foot of East led. Leonawell and Yorkville Belle are both said to be off, and this will leave the relinquished the hope of recovering their take to be run for by selling platers.

The other events look very good and ought to furnish some interesting sport. Prince George, Eagle Bird, Corduroy, Annie F. colt and Marshall ought to make a pretty race in the fifth event — a handleap sweepstakes.

Stonemell, Tormentor, Chesapeake, Addie

A few minutes later his father, who and other good sprinters go in the opening dash, and in the second Diablo, Joe Carter, Melen Rose and Now or Never ought to make brother to supper. Fires Rushing Through Mountain

Were the distracted parents shared this belief, until last Saturday, when the father, on going over the grounds again, discovered the coat that Alife had worn on the day of the coat that Alife had worn on the day of dwar daway behind a boulder, half way down the precipice.

"We had searched that spot a dezen times before," said Mrs. McPherson to an Evening before, said Mrs. McPherson to an Evening before, said Mrs. McPherson to an Evening before that our Alife must have been kidnapper for some purpose, which we are as yet mable to fathom."

The McPhersons moved to their present home last danuary from 432 East Ninetysecond street. They say that they have no enemies in this country nor in Scotiand, from where they originally came.

Alle was very bright and was liked by all who knew him.

His nother described him as slim and slightly built, of dark complexion, with dark brown hair and piercing black, large eyes. He had no mark on his body. He wore white black sateen waist without sleeves, black of its more sate of the fire and its without doubt the most stately and magnificent of the mountain timber like mountain timber like from here. The flames are sweeping everyth with tall timber and is without doubt the most stately and magnificent of the natural parks in Western Colorado.

It looks as though the fire would reach to Trapper's take, where several campers may be cut off from escape.

There is no way of communicating with the upper country except by courier, and the fact that no one has arrived from there has intensified interest in the fire.

At 5.4, 8, 10-day the entire mountain side seemed to be in fames. The fire is burning fercely. It can be stopped only by those who live across the mountain. B. Clark Wheeler who owns a ranch and sawmill in the park The prompt discovery of a fire in the fourhas been persistently fighting the fire all day

"Practical jokers sometimes come to grief," said one of Nebraska's big bonanza farmers to a St. Louis Gibbs. Jumo cout reporter.

"At Omaha some years ago I fell in with a gay rarty of drummers en route to Lincoln. In the party was a young Bostonian making his first trip West. He imagined he was liable to be wavlaid and massacred any mement by Indians, and the drummers were careful to strengthen this impression.

"We finally determined to get up an Indian massacre for his benefit, so a committee was detailed to get him in, o the smoker and tell him blood and thunder stories while the rest did the Indian act.

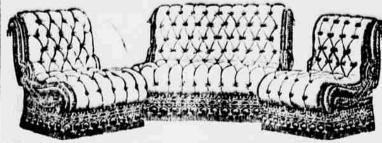

"The night was pitch dark and when the train stopped at a louely water tank four or five drummers quiety dropped off, surrounded the smoker, set up a frightful yell and began fiving off their revolvers.

We expected the young Bostonian to crawl under a sent and sav his prayers, but he disappointed us. He whisped a big 45 out of his grip, threw up a window, and began to blaze away at the mock Indians in a menner that took all the fun out of the joke. It had been raining.

"There was a deep gully full of muddy water on either side of the track, and through this the jokers rolled and plunged to ge, out of the way of the whisting bullets. When they crawled back on the train they were the sorriest looking set of stage Indians you ever saw."
